

Part One of the Five Part Dystopian Fiction Series, Newlander: Finding out his identity is only his first barrier, but when an unknown man finds himself trapped on an island, a whole other set of problems find him. The future and the past seem to be indistinguishable from one another on The Island of Stability, and his everyday life is set on a course he has no control over, a course that if he goes against it, could lead to fatal results... The citizens of the island already recognize him, even though he can't recognize himself. Two women have taken a particular interest in him, one with power, and one with seeming compassion. He has but two choices, to be obedient, or to go against the grain, with dangerous implications. Embroiled in intrigue, he fights to solve the riddle of The Newlander, and find a way out...
