

On the last and deciding play of the Super Bowl as the quarterback (the first ever from Puerto Rico in the NFL) drops back to pass to an open man in the end zone, he suddenly collapses. Eddie Furst is a sportswriter and long-time friend of Fred Martinez, the quarterback who had come out of retirement to lead his team to the Super Bowl. Fred is married to Eddie's former lover. As Eddie pursues the mysterious death, his twitchy nose tells him it is a murder despite the official verdict that Fred died of a heart attack. Drugs, the Puerto Rican Independence Movement and the mob are involved. Eddie goes to Puerto Rico to investigate further. There he meets a woman agent for a U.S. government organization. They not only work together but begin a wonderful, romantic affair.
